

Shreehari works as a policy analyst at IndiaSpend, an independent data-journalism website. As a writer at IndiaSpend, he has reported on water, labour, elections, agriculture, and police and judicial reforms. He received a special mention at the 2019 Red Ink Awards for a ground report on how the state women's collective helped rebuild Kerala in the aftermath of the 2018 floods. He has a post-graduate diploma from the Asian College of Journalism, Chennai, a master's degree in development from Azim Premji University.

Prachi has two masters degrees: In economics from Mumbai University and in development studies from the University of Sussex, UK. She holds a bachelor's degree in economics from St. Xaviers College, Mumbai. She has been a research assistant at the Institute of Development Studies (UK) and the Young Foundation (UK). She has also worked for Greenpeace India in the fundraising division.