

Shreehari works as a policy analyst at IndiaSpend, an independent data-journalism website. As a writer at IndiaSpend, he has reported on water, labour, elections, agriculture, and police and judicial reforms. He received a special mention at the 2019 Red Ink Awards for a ground report on how the state women's collective helped rebuild Kerala in the aftermath of the 2018 floods. He has a post-graduate diploma from the Asian College of Journalism, Chennai, a master's degree in development from Azim Premji University.